

PPPs & Project Finance

2-Day Executive Education Training Programme

London: 9th – 10th March 2016

Programme Overview

PPPs & Project Finance is a comprehensive and intensive 2-day course, aimed at professionals who are involved in Public Private Partnerships and who use Project Finance as a means to fund large infrastructure projects. At the heart of this course lies risk – project risk and credit risk – and understanding and managing the complexities that arise from a sponsor's and a lender's perspective.

Course Director – Dr. Robert Bain

Robert Bain is an independent infrastructure investment analyst. A Chartered Civil Engineer, he was a transportation consultant for 15 years working in Asia, Latin America, the USA and Europe for private sector investors and public sector promoters. In 2002 he moved into financial services and was employed as a senior credit analyst with Standard & Poor's for five years. As a Director in the London-based Infrastructure Finance Ratings practice, he was responsible for credits in the transportation and PPP sectors. Robert's portfolio covered corporate issuers and structured finance transactions — typically project finance deals and securitisations.

Robert holds a PhD from the Institute for Transport Studies at the University of Leeds. His doctoral thesis focused on investor-financed infrastructure projects. He is currently retained by several banks on a freelance basis and runs his own specialist consultancy providing technical and credit-related support services – and project finance training courses – to institutional investors, insurance companies and infrastructure funds.
